

How do I set up WebMailPRO as my default e-mail Internet program for mailto: links?

Summary

Windows 2000, Windows XP (using IE 8 or earlier) and Machintosh OSX users can follow the instructions that we have posted here: <http://www.k12usa.com/mailto.asp>

Users of Windows XP (using IE 9) /Vista/7 can use the instructions below to make our web-based mail services the default E-mail program for their computer. This will allow the WebMailPRO e-mail compose window to open after you click on a mailto: link.

WebMailPRO

More Information

- You will need to install an third-party program called GmailDefaultMaker from CodePlex. This open source program was designed to work with any web-based E-mail software.

You can download this program here:

<http://gmaildefault.codeplex.com/downloads/get/165733>

- After you have downloaded the program, run the installation wizard. When you get to the Setup Type page, just select the option: Yahoo and complete the installation process.
- Once the application has been installed, go to your Windows Start menu and type in Notepad. Right-click on the Notepad program and select Run as administrator and Open the txt file called "link" that by default is located under C:/Program Files > GmailDefaultMaker.
- After you have opened the "link" txt file, delete all of the text that is in the file and
